Effect of the Nomination There of a Third Ticket for Assemblymen-The Machine Republicans Disposed to Ride Rough Shod Over the New Idea Advocates.

According to the people of Newark, New York is not the only place in which a lively political scrap is going on. Although this is an off year, as far as the election of a Governor is concerned, a new Assembly, which is to take part in naming the successor of United Sates Senator John F. Dreyden, is to be elected, and there re numerous hot fights on local candidates all through the State, in which the followers of Everett Colby and Mayor Fagan of Jersey City, leaders of what is called the New Idea party, are taking an active part, although they are practically without a candidate for the national Senate. The struggle is now between Senator Dryden and Col. Edwin A. Stevens of Castle Point, Hoboken, who hopes to be elected by a combination of Democrats and independent members in the next Legislature.

Col. Stevens himself is a wealthy man; but he proposes to carry on the contest entirely on his merits. He does not believe in spending any money except for legitimate expenses. He has pledged himself to the State Civic Federation to make public a sworn statement of the expenditures of his campaign together with the sources from which they were derived. In fact, he has promised publicly to make a detailed statement of every dollar he spends and he has asked Senator Dryden in a formal letter to pledge himself to do the same thing. Up in the saddle again in Essex county as well as elsewhere and they are determined to ride roughshod over the reformers who have caused them so much trouble in the Legislature recently. Dryden will have behind him not only the regular Republican organization but the great public and semipublic corporations like the Public Service corporation and the Prudential Insurance Company of which he is president.

Since the so-called regulars got back in the saddle, especially in Essex county where Major Carl Lentz is the leader, there has been no disposition on the part of the machine to recognize in any way the very numerous independents who under the leadership of Senator Colby once overthrew the organization at the primary. This has bred a feeling of rebellion among the independents and has led indirectly, among other things, to the nomination of a third ticket for Assemblymen in Essex

The situation in Newark, which of course contains the largest share of the populatica in Essex county, further complicates motters that pertain to the coming election. even up to the choice of a Senator to succeed Dryden. There is a three cornered fight on there over the Mayoralty, and the burning issue is the excise questionwhether Newark shall strictly observe the Sabbath or whether the people shall be able to get drinks on that day. This issue was brought to the front by the passage by the Legislature of the so-called Bishops' law, whose one clause, providing that there shall be no screened bars on Sunday, has shut up all the saloons in the big cities of the State on the first day of the week.

Newark is a great manufacturing town and its population is cosmopolitan. Many of the citizens think they have just as much right to drink on Sunday, if they are orderly, as any other day in the week, and they are bitterly opposed to the Bishops' law. So are the saloon keepers and the brewers, whose combined rower in politics is great. whose combined power in politics is great. The Democratic party has recognized this. Their candidate for Mayor is Jacob Hauss-

Their candidate for Mayor is Jacob Hauss-ling, who is a bottler of mineral water and who sells large amounts of his wares to the saloons. The platform on which he stands is frankly for a more liberal Sunday. The Republican candidate is Walton S. Howarth, who is now the president of the Common Council. The platform on which he is running straddles the Sunday ques-tion. It favors the return of the system tion. It favors the return of the system of local excise boards, which would give each city the control of its own liquor traffic.

the strict observance of the Sabbath were not satisfied with either of the platforms. They would have nothing at all to do with the Democrats and they mistrusted the Republicans on account of the ambiguous and they had taken on the question of sunday selling. There was an agitation in which the pastors of several churches took which the pastors of several churches took are active part, and finally a meeting was called. About 600 people attended, and the result of the conference was that the candidacy of George W. Tomkins, the independent, for Mayor was ratified. There were also put into nomination cleven Assemblymen who are pled ed to oppose the repeal of the Bisb ps. law. At first no action was taken by the independents on action was taken by the independents on ction was taken by the independents on the Senatorial question, but afterward it was decided that any candidate elected to the Assembly should oppose the election for United States Senate any man who was directly interested in any public or quasi-public corporation. Of course this ection was aimed at Dryden, with a view of strengthening the position of Tomkins, who is fighting the brewers and the bosses. The independents are relying largely on the Colby forces to make their campaign excessful, although it is said that some con the Colby forces to make their campaign successful, although it is said that some of the candidates for Assembly cannot be relied upon to oppose Dryden if they are elected. The Colby people polled 15,000 votes in the last primaries, the regulars under Major Lentz beating them by only about 2,500 in the struggle. This would indicate a support well worth having, and the may either cause a defeat of the Republish t may either cause a defeat of the Republicans by the Democrats for city offices or it may mean the triumph of the independent candidate for Mayor and a majority of the Assemblymen. Opinion on the outcome Assemblymen. Opinion on the outcome of the struggle in Essex is widely divergent of the struggle in Esset is whelly divergent in Newark. Some of the political observers seem to think that Tomkins and the other independent candidates have a good chance of winning. Others assert that the ticket will poll only a very small vote.

After the defeat of the New Idea forces at the primary election Sensor Colby re-fused for a time to indicate what course he would take in a political way this fall. Many were curious to know how his fol-lowers would stand in view of the large vote at they had cast at the primaries, and when did consent to speak a day or so ago there was, it is said, cold confort in his remarks for the Republican machine man-agers. Senator Colly said that the New Idea people had made their fight in the primaries as Republicans and for that reaon, and no other, he was compelled by the rules of ordinary political honesty to remain in the Republican party and to stand for and support a majority of the Republican nominees. This, he said, did not mean that he believed in the repeal of the Bishops' or in the reelection of Senator Dr and it did not mean that he stood for Major Lentz, but it was because they had becom the fight in the party as the most useful way to work. He said that he and his friends could not now, after defeat in the primaries, play double with any of their own supporters, even though the attitude of the Senator and his followers did not of the Senator and his followers did not meet with the approval of some of their most loval friends. When asked if he would vote for any of the nominees on the independent ticket Mr. Colby replied:

"Yes, I shall give credits to the Independent candidates as often as I scratch the regular Republican nominees."

Col. Anthony R. Kuser, who is managing Senator Dryden's campaign, declared that the fight was all over except the shouting. the fight was all over except the shouting.

at least fifty-three votes in the joint session | LEFT TO STARVE IN THE WOODS to last evening Senator Dryden had not answered this letter.

It is admitted on all sides that Senator Dryden will be a hard man to beat for reelection. The disastrous defeat of the Colby-Fagan forces throughout the State at the last primaries has put the machine the assignment of the control of the legislature, and that there would be nine votes in doubt. Even if the Democrats got all those in doubt Senator Dryden, according to Col. Kuser's figures, would still be reelected by a good majority.

Col. Kuser gave the vote in detail as he believes it will be cast in the Legislature as follows:

DEMOCRATS AGAINST HEARST.

McGoldrick Tells Them Croker, Not Hearst. Paid for Bill Anthony's Funeral.

About 1,500 Democrats who are going to vote for Charles E. Hughes held forth night at Camp Hughes in West 125th street, and the tent was not half large enough to accommodate the crowd. Lewis A. Abrams, who tried to wrest the Tammany leadership from Peter Hendrick in the last primary election in the Thirty-first Assembly district, was the chairman.

Mr. Abrams said that when he was invited to preside at the meeting he was somewhat undecided, but he was not ashamed to go into a Republican camp on such an occasion. The campaign, as far as he understood it, was not a campaign of issues, but one of personalities.

"Hearst is a political mountebank," said former where he is the whole show. You have often seen those shows in a country town where the performance is given in one ring and the circus proprietor is the whole thing. He takes the tickets, sells peanuts and does the barking at the en-

Mr. Abrams then convulsed the audience with a comic programme of the Hearst one man circus. Thomas F. Grady and Bourke Cockran, he said, played the Siamese twins in the sideshow

The next speaker was John B. McGoldrick, who was for many years the private secretary of Bichard Croker. He said that he was going to puncture one of Hearst's lies about Bill Anthony, Capt. Sigsbee's orderly on the ill fated battleship Maine. Anthony committed suicide in Central Park a couple of years later and his body was recognized by Father Chidwick in the morgue at the Presbyterian Hospital. After the body was buried in Greenwood Cemetery the New York American came out in big head lines and started a subscription for Anthony's relatives and said that Hearst would pay all the funeral ex-

"I wanted to find out who really paid the expenses for the funeral," said McGoldrick, "and for the monument that was erected over his grave, and I was told to go and see Stephen Merritt. I asked Mr. Merritt if he had any objection about telling me who had paid for Anthony's funeral, and for the monument, and he said that he man who had footed the bill for the en amount was Richard Croker, and for the first time, gentlemen and fellow Democrats, I make this statement in public. Croker and I have not been on the best of terms, but I believe in giving credit to whom credit is due.

A letter was read from Austen G. Fox. in which he said that his views were in hearty sympathy with the meeting. Joseph D. Baucus, a son of the late Senator Baucus, was the next speaker. He said he did not want to tell his real views of Hearst, for if he did no paper in the city would print them. He said that Hearst was never on the level, and when he opposed his nomination in Tammany Hall he was imm edination was the level, and was giad that he paper Attack on Husband PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 1 .- It was announced from the stage of Institute Hall to-night that Mrs. Silas C. Swallow is lying at death's door as the result of nervous prostration brought on by the newspaper attacks made on her husband. The Rev. Dr. Swallow, who is one of the best known Prohibitionists in the United States and the recent nominee of his party for President, was billed for a speech in West Philadelphia. When the audience gathered other speakers were substituted. C. E. Newlin of Harrisburg, speaking from the stage, said: "Dr. Swallow was here this afternoon, but he only remained long enough to begin further actions for libel against Charles Emory Smith. He had to return home immediately to the bedside of his wife, who is hovering near death's door, prostrated by the attacks made on her husband. He has cancelled all engagements to speak."

Mr. Swallow got another warrant to-day for the arrest of Editor Charles Emory

He wandered about all day looking for food and managed to collect a quart of acorns, which with coffee served for dinner. The second day he passed in hunting about the shores of Nicatus Lake, from the waters of which he caught two frogs and a dozen small minnows, which served for a dozen small minnows, which served for a day.

The next day coffee was all he had at each meal, although six deer filed past him about nightfall on their way to the lake and he also saw several partridges. On the fourth day, the last of his con-densed milk, coffee and sugar were used, and he made a meal on frogs and minnows, but at superst he continued a hedgehor, and but at sunset he captured a hedgehog and as he was preparing to bake it in clay two men appeared with provender.

COMMITTEES OF WORKMEN ARE MAKING ANNUAL DEMANDS.

D., L. & W. Engineers See President Truesdale-Underwood of the Eric Says That the Outlook Is All for Men-Recognize the Union, but Don't Admit They Do. The officials of the different railroads which are holding conferences with the grievance committees of the engineers, fremen, switchmen and other men did not seem to take much stock yesterday in the stories that strikes are pending. They believed, they said, that the strike talk arose from Western despatches of pending strikes on Western railroads which came to New York a month or two ago.

W. G. Besler, general manager of the Central Railroad of New Jersey, said yesterday that the grievance committee of the employees which had been conferring with the officials had gone away and that all the grievances had been settled satisfactorily.

A committee of the engineers on the Delaware. Lackawanna and Western Railroad had a conference yesterday forenoon with President W. H. Truesdale in the offices of the company, 26 Exchange place. After the meeting had lasted several hours an adjournment was taken until 11 o'clock this forenoon. Mr. Truesdale would not say what had been done, and chairman Clark of the grievance committee said that nothing definite had been accomplished. Conferences began yesterday in the offices of the Eric Railroad in the Bowling Green Building between the grievance committee of the engineers and firemen and General Manager J. C. Stuart. President F. D. Underwood said last evening to a SUN reporter:

"On account of the number of roads merged with the Erie there may be a number of things to adjust which would not come up ordinarily. Some of the roads in the merger, for instance pay by the day and some by the mile and we have for some time been trying to get something like a uniform system. We consider the mileage system the more equitable and we believe the majority of the men believe

Some of them are getting as high as $175 a month. When times are not good and the men are notified that there will be reductions in wages they are more likely to strike. This year's conferences do not differ from those of last year except that for the reason I have stated there will be more questions to be ated there will be more questions to be scussed." In reference to the statements that the committees are received as committees of the men and not of their unions he said: "That is true, but it is merely a technical point. We know that they are also com-mittees of the union. I see no objection mittees of the union. I see no objection as long as they are our employees. If a settlement cannot be reached they may send the chiefs of their organizations as a last resort. That would not affect the situation, but I see no reason why they should not have one of their chief officers as their attorney. That fact would not however, have any special weight with us. The term 'grisyance committee,' is a new The term 'grievance committee' is a new one and is not a proper term. The real name of the committee is 'adjustment committee.' " Superintendent C. F. Smith of the New York Central said that the committees of

FLAMES AT CONSTABLE HOOK. Op Warehouse Destroyed, but Fire Is Kept

For five hours yesterday 300 employees of the Standard Oil Company at its Constable Hook plant fought a fire that for a time threatened to spread to some of the many oil tanks and adjacent buildings in the yards. The fire was first seen in a warehouse on Pier 5. a frame structure 750 feet long and 300 feet wide. It was filled with barrels of oil awaiting shipment to foreign countries. An alarm was sounded on the siren whistle which can be heard two miles away and the trained fire fighters among the employees got busy and soon had streams of water directed on the building. The heat was intense and the men stood behind corrugated steel shields

PRINCE CAN'T WED ACTRESS.

Hitch in Plan by Which She Was to Get a Divorce From Accommodating Baron.

Special Cable Despatch to THE SUN. BERLIN, Nov. 1.-It is officially denied that Prince Joachim Albrecht of Prussia will marry Marie Sulzer, the actress, other wise Baroness Liebenburg. It is said the reason is that the Baroness has never been divorced from her husband, to whom she was married in London on May 9. The Baron married her simply for the purpose of ennobling her.

Inasmuch as Prince Joachim, if he married a woman not belonging to the no-bility, would be completely banished from the Prussian court, a matrimonial agent in Berlin employed a needy and purchasable nobleman who would marry the actress and then qualify for a divorce.

After considerable difficulty Baron Liebenburg, an impecunious Austrian, was found. The pair were not acquainted and never met until they went to the Registrar's office, where the ceremony was performed. Immediately the knot was tied the couple curtly wished each other good morning and have not met since.

Baron Liebenburg accompanied the agent to the Continent with $3,750, the price of his husbandship, to prepare for the divorce He was to get another $3,750 when the decree was granted. He found no difficulty in qualifying, but a subsequent dispute with the marriage agent respecting payment interrupted the proceedings. The Baron, who is living obscurely in London on a small weekly allowance from Marie Sulzer's solicitor, says that no papers have been served and that he is still Marie's husband. The actress has vanished and Prince Joachim's whereabouts are unknown.

IRELAND TO HAVE A GREAT FAIR.

Exhibition to Open Next May-Guarantee Fund Now Amounts to $1,000,000.

Special Cable Despatch to THE SUN. LONDON, Nov. 1 .- Next May will see the pening of the great Irish international exhibition. The guarantee fund nowamounts to $1,000,000, Lord Iveagh heading the list with $50,000.

The buildings will resemble in scheme those of the late Paris exposition. A prominent feature will be a great dome. the elevation of which will be equal to half that of St. Paul's Cathedral, London. If King Edward does not open the exhibition he will at least honor it with his presence at a later date.

The Irish people are approaching the enterprise in a spirit of humility. The world at large will appreciate and understand how anxious Ireland is to show what she can do for herself, and she candidly admits that she is willing to learn from others to do that which she now cannot do Ireland hopes and believes that her exhibition will be the finest the world has seen since the London exhibitions of 1851 and 1862.

DID HE MURDER HIS FRIEND?

AUGUST BENNETT FOUND STAND-ING OVER DYING FRED BEY.

His Clothing Covered With Mnd as if He Had Been in a Fight-Says a Stranger Got Into a Fight With Bey and Stabbed

MONTCLAIR, N. J., Nov. 1 .- August Bennett, 24 years of age, of 39 Franklin street, Newark, was a prisoner in the Montclair ail to-day on a charge of murder preferred by Chief of Police Henry Gallagher. Bennett, the chief alleges, at 2:15 o'clock this morning stabbed to death Frederick Bey, whose home was at 184 Parker street, Newark. The latter was 20 years old. Bennett denies that he murdered Bey. He made the following statement to the police: "I left my home in Newark last night to attend a dance at Fabian's hotel in Cedar Grove, where I remained until after midnight, when in company with Bey, I started out in the direction of Montclair. We had reached a point just over the Montclair ine when we met a stranger who jostled Bey and an argument ensued. The men clinched and in the mixup the stranger pulled a knife from his pocket and stabbed Bey in the left breast. The assassin then fled. I was doing what I could to get my friend on his feet when an officer appeared on the scene." Officer Michael Corcoran found Bennett standing over Bey shortly after 2 o'clock this morning, and sent in a call for the Mountainside Hospital ambulance. The man was still alive, but he died before the ambulance arrived. Bennett was placed under arrest. Detective Charles Hummell of the Prosecutor's office made a search for the knife this morning, but none could were covered with mud and dirt. Bey and that finding himself worsted stabbed his adversary.

James O'Dowd, a milkman of Caldwell, who has a route in Montclair, was held up by two men shortly before 2 o'clock this morning. They asked for a ride to Montclair, which request O'Dowd refused. He says the men were intoxicated and were using harsh language toward each other. The point where he encountered the men is but a short distance from the scene of the tragedy. Whether they were Bey and Bennett is yet to be ascertained.

Bey and Bennett were silversmiths employed in Tiffany's factory at Forest Hill.

N. J. Working in the same factory with the men was Frank Fabian, a son of the hotel proprietor at Cedar Grove. Young Fabian had arranged a surprise party for his sister and had invited Bey and Bennett to it.

for his sister and had invited Bey and Bennett to it.

According to the story told by Bennett, both he and Bey drank considerably during the evening and were not sober when they left the hotel. He denies that any quarrel occurred between them. He is unable to explain the cuts and bruises on his face, but believes they were the result of falls while groping his way along the country road in an intoxicated condition. Bennett's parents live at Sag Harbor, L. I.

The prisoner was arraigned before Recorder Yost at noon to-day. He waived examination and was held without bail.
